

WAR HEROES EAGER TO THANK DONORS

Ohio Division Anxious to Send Committee With Words of Gratitude.

MORE EVENTS AID FUND

Autograph Collection Will Be Sold—Rummage Sale Progressing Well.

An officer of the Thirty-seventh Division, who is escorting visiting Ohioans down to Camp Mills to see the returned heroes and hear their tales of the prowess of "others" as they are too modest to speak of themselves, made a call on THE SUN Tobacco Fund yesterday morning to arrange for a visit by a deputation later in the week. He said: "There were two things these boys wanted to do before they went down to camp, one was to attend the big parade and the other was to send a committee to THE SUN office and personally convey the thanks of hundreds of soldiers for what THE SUN Tobacco Fund had done for them. The latter will have to be deferred. But it is certain to come off for the boys are very enthusiastic in their gratitude to your fund."

This division was originally the Ohio National Guard and not all of the 5,000 or 6,000 men of those who returned on Sunday got down to Camp Mills right away; a few of them with relatives in the city spent the night and part of yesterday with them. Corporal Conklin, whose home is in Cleveland, told of a distribution shortly before the Nordram sailed from France of $500 fund to tobacco, which consisted of packages of smoking tobacco which kept many of the men cheerful on the way over.

The first of THE SUN tobacco that companies of this division got was during the great Aronne drive and a second distribution, not so large, was issued to them shortly after they entered St. Mihiel early in October. After that they were under French command in Belgium and as they said, "out of it," not having from the smoke fund, but having to put up with French and Belgian tobacco and very little of that until they were trained for embarkation home.

Lieutenant Wells Hawkes, who has just got home after motoring 8,000 miles in France taking pictures of American soldiers in all sorts of positions and engagements, in a wholesale authority of the widespread work of the smoke fund, getting nowhere that he did not find THE SUN Tobacco Fund had been before him, or was on his trail. Lieut. Hawkes is of the Naval Reserve Force and before he went to Europe he did many favors for THE SUN Tobacco Fund, supplying for its entertainments singers and other military artists. For the great entertainment given to benefit THE SUN Tobacco Fund at the Hippodrome on October 23, 1917, Lieut. Hawkes sent a troop of gallant marines to appear as the background of one of the most interesting events of the evening. It is likely that he will furnish in detail a story of what he saw the smoke fund accomplish in France.

Sends Thanks to Empey.

Arthur Guy Empey has received a letter from First Class Private Al Tully, who was in Base Hospital 36, situated at Allery, France, when he wrote it. While the subject of this letter is thanks for a welcome donation of tobacco sent over to him by THE SUN Tobacco Fund, of which Sergeant Empey has been an ardent supporter since its start, Private Tully goes wider afield and tells some things that the donors of the fund ought to know. Says he: "I do not suppose any person who wasn't present when this tobacco was passed out has any idea of what it does to sick soldiers. There has been a lot of SUN tobacco given out in this hospital and we are always looking for a new issue. The boys when they come here are down in the mouth; they may not be so badly wounded or so very sick, but they are disheartened for this reason, they know that as soon as they get well they will be sent to join a company where everybody is a stranger and the boys don't like the prospect. For the time they live about without much gap and the first thing that starts it up again is the tobacco they may get from the SUN smoke fund. We always tell them it's a good thing that starts them up a bit. And sure enough it has always made good and kept the rest of us from being caught in a lie. This SUN smoke always has come. Then the change is marvelous and you wouldn't know they were the same fellows. I wish, Sergeant, you would tell the folks back home about this and say that as long as there is a Yankee soldier in a hospital abroad they ought to keep on sending him smokes. I guess that will hold the folks. If you write to me, as I wish you would, address me A. P. O. 785."

The lady waitresses in the lunch room of the Prudential Insurance Company have received a pleasant greeting from Private John K. Loun, who wrote it while he was in Base Hospital 780. He says: "Hello, girls! How's your health? I have just received your kind donation given us by THE SUN Tobacco Fund and I wish to thank you on behalf of the other boys and myself. It is a pleasure especially as I happen to be a policy holder of the Prudential in the Philadelphia branch. Well, girls, it won't be long before we will be back in dear old Philadelphia again and we especially feel hopeful about coming back owing to the arrival of your gift. Thank you once more."

More Help Arrives.

Patrick P. Madigan has augmented the gift of autographs made to THE SUN Tobacco Fund by Mr. Crane consisting of eight items from Louis IV. to Queen Victoria by a valuable collection of autographs of American and English statesmen and literary men of eminence of both nations. These, with two excellent caricatures of himself by Currier, he offers for sale at 561 Fifth avenue, entrance to store in Forty-sixth street. These autographs comprise a priceless

O'LEARY IS HELD ON HIGHER CHARGE

Indictment Charging Capital Offense Still Hangs Over Man in Tombs.

No move was made yesterday toward obtaining the release of Jeremiah O'Leary from the Tombs prison. John O'Leary, his brother, said that an application for bail was contemplated, but would not be made until the return of Thomas B. Felder, chief of counsel, from Washington. Jeremiah is held in the Tombs awaiting trial on an indictment based on another section of the espionage law, which prescribes a capital offense. A motion for bail before the retrial of the indictment would not free him, because of the more serious indictment, but it would give him a counsel opportunity to demand that he obtain an immediate trial on the non-bailable indictment. O'Leary has been in the Tombs since he was brought back from Oregon a fugitive from justice last spring.

Government and that American jurists, where issues are properly presented, can be depended on to do justice." Federal trial jurors are not prohibited from telling what happened in the jury room after being dismissed and one of the O'Leary jury gave an outline of the deliberations he shared yesterday. As soon as the jury retired its members decided to acquit Adolf Stern, business manager of Bull, and to eliminate the two counts of the indictment charging a conspiracy. This narrowed the issue down to the individual guilt or innocence of O'Leary, the Bull Publishing Company and the American Truth Society in connection with the August, September and October issues of Bull in 1917. Soon after, the issue was simplified further by the elimination of the August and September issues, thus concentrating the case on the October issue. The October issue was chosen because it appeared after the use of the mails had been denied to the publication. The matter it contained was regarded as much less objectionable by the Government than that in the two preceding issues.

McMenamy Leaves Creighton.

OMAHA, March 24.—The Rev. Francis X. McMenamy, president of Creighton University, accepted to-day the position as head of the Province of Missouri Society of Jesus, with supervision of many Catholic universities, schools, colleges and other institutions in the entire Middle West. His resignation as president of Creighton was accepted by the trustees of the university.

On the first vote the jurors stood 8 to 4 for acquittal.

The vote did not change during the succeeding twenty-nine ballots. The only change on the part of either side was the concession of the jurors who stood for conviction to permit the issue to be narrowed down to the October issue.

The juror who stood most positively for conviction was Ernest R. Hunter, who lives at 104 East Seventeenth street. The jurors who voted with him were Frank H. Janke of Suffern, James C. Hall of Lake Mahopae and Elias J. Cabot of 706 East 134th street, The Bronx.

The juror who led the argument for acquittal was William L. H. Gallin, a contractor, of 244 East 199th street, The Bronx. His most positive supporters were James S. Kirk, an electrician, of 101 West Ninety-first street and George E. Hall, a salesman, of 110 Riverside Drive. The remainder of the jurors said little during the long discussion.

James S. Osborne 34, Assistant United States Attorney, said yesterday that it had not been decided whether to retry O'Leary on the Bull indictment. In addition to the Bull indictment and the capital offense indictment there is an indictment against O'Leary charging him and others with conspiracy to commit treason. This last is relatively a minor offense carrying with it a prison penalty upon conviction of two years.

Albert Paul Fricks and John T. Ryan, defendants with O'Leary on the non-bailable espionage law indictment, were reindicted separately recently charged with straight treason, a capital offense. Fricks is to go to trial on this indictment this week.
